

THE CONCEPTS OF "Fundamental RIGHTS AND FREEDOMS" VERSUS "RIGHTS AND FREEDOMS"

– AND HOW TO IDENTIFY THEM

Articles of the Regulation related to the rights and freedoms of natural persons:

Art. 1 paragraph Regulations "This regulation protects the fundamental rights and freedoms of natural persons, especially their right to the protection of personal data."

Article 6 par. 1 letter f) Regulation "(...) processing is necessary for the purposes of legitimate interests, which is monitored by the operator or a third party, except when above such interests prevail over the interests or fundamental rights and freedoms of the data subject that they require protection of personal data, especially if the person concerned is a child."

Article 24 par. 1 Regulations "With regard to the nature, scope, context and purposes of the processing, as well as to risks of varying probability and severity for the rights and freedoms of natural persons the operator will take appropriate technical and organizational measures to ensure and be able demonstrate that the processing is carried out in accordance with this regulation. The mentioned measures according to needs will be reviewed and updated."

Article 32 of the Regulations "The operator and intermediary shall adopt, taking into account the latest knowledge, the costs of carrying out the measures and the nature, scope, context and purposes of the processing, as well as to risks of varying probability and severity for the rights and freedoms of natural persons, appropriate technical and organizational measures in order to ensure an adequate level of security this risk, while the mentioned measures possibly also include..."

Within the entire text of the Regulation, rights and freedoms are mentioned through two different expressions:

- Basic rights and freedoms
- Rights and freedoms.

Question 1:

Are all the fundamental rights and freedoms required and listed in the Regulations the same as in the Charter fundamental rights and freedoms of the European Union?

List of all identified rights and freedoms, mentioned (directly or indirectly) in the articles

The charters are listed in Annex 1.

Question 2:

In the text of the Regulation, only the term "rights and freedoms" is mentioned somewhere and not the term "fundamental rights and freedom". What is the reason for such a lexical difference in the text of the Regulation?

We see this difference very clearly, especially:

- An assessment of risks of varying probability and severity for rights and freedoms is required natural persons.

- First we need to identify all rights and freedoms.

- We then select a subset of identified rights and freedoms that are relevant for processing and a natural person.

- Only then can we make an assessment.

Question 3:

1

If we do a risk assessment only for all relevant fundamental rights and freedoms, but not for all rights and freedoms, let's proceed in accordance with the Regulations (especially in the case of a possible lawsuit)?

Annex 2 contains an example for impact assessment.

Annex 1 – list of rights and freedoms in the Charter

Note: We understand the prohibitions expressly stated in the text of the charter as an implicitly stated right to protect against the object of the prohibition

(for example, the "prohibition of torture" establishes the "right to be protected from torture").

No.

Annex 2 – example for impact assessment for the national eHealth system

The impact assessment for the rights and freedoms listed in the Charter is very important for the level assessment risk in the national electronic health system, in which data is collected regarding are healthy for the entire population.

The impact assessment covers scenarios such as massive data loss or a massive breach confidentiality, integrity, availability of genetic data, biometric data and data relating to are healthy - these data are in the national system of electronic healthcare. Evaluation performed against the entire population. Any violation of a fundamental right or freedom has a major impact to the individual concerned.

The risk to the right to freedom is a combination of the impact and the probability of the threat being realized. In below the above table shows the impact assessment. The probability of occurrence of threats depends from the level of security countermeasures. If we have strong pseudonymization in the system (it is not no option for the administrator to combine identification and health data about a person), the likelihood of a massive breach of confidentiality is very low.

VIP data

Personal data related to health with a serious impact in case of loss of integrity or confidentiality of some diagnosis and related documentation; classification according to ICD-10.

Examples:

A00-B99

Some infectious and parasitic diseases

Example: A51.1 - Primary anal syphilis

Suppose that due to the violation of integrity, the diagnosis A41.1 "Sepsis caused by another by specified staphylococci" changed to A51.1 and then this information is related to some VIP published in some tabloids. The whole life of the person concerned can be completely destroyed.

F00-F99

Mental disorders and behavioral disorders

Example: F23.0 - Acute polymorphic psychotic disorder without symptoms of schizophrenia

Let's assume that this information is after the general release of the data in the bulletin.

The entire life of the affected person can be significantly disrupted.

Other examples of the importance of the integrity of personal data in health care

Right to live

A pregnant woman is obliged to undergo genetic tests of the fetus. If any is indicated serious genetic disease, there is a high probability that this woman will decide to have an abortion.

Now we assume the scenario that the integrity of the test results is violated (when marking serious genetic diseases) and that she decided to have an abortion. Later, however, she received information that in there was an error in the results, so there was no serious genetic disease of the fetus and miscarriage was not needed.

This situation shows a huge impact on the right to protect the life of the nascitura, private life women, family life, mental integrity, etc.

The right to respect the physical integrity of a person - threats by the use of personal data that change integrity

- ☐ Hacking a pacemaker or other life support device is real a threat to the physical integrity of a person.

- ☐ Change of consent to undisturbed procedures in case of cancer.

- ☐ Change of consent not to donate organs for transplantation (including death).

21

A set of human rights based on limited legal capacity

The restriction of human rights is based on the restriction of the legal capacity of a natural person.

A psychiatric assessment of this natural person is also part of the judicial decision-making process.

If the relevant documents have changed their integrity or have been falsified or broken, the person may lose many legal rights, including the right to vote, the right to own legally acquired property, the right to use legally acquired property, the right to dispose of legally acquired property, etc.
