

The Agency for Personal Data Protection, in cooperation with the Croatian Chamber of Commerce, continues with a series of free online workshops "How to harmonize business with the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR)". Micro, small and medium entrepreneurs from the Osijek-Baranja and Požega-Slavonia counties had the opportunity to participate in the workshop on November 12 and 13.

Interactive workshops, which, in addition to lectures on the legislative framework on personal data protection, also consist of practical exercises in order for entrepreneurs to acquire the necessary knowledge and skills on the most concrete examples. Also, as part of the workshop materials, participants received templates for the application of the GDPR, which they can then adapt to their business, as well as a certificate of education issued by the Personal Data Protection Agency as the national supervisory authority responsible for monitoring the implementation of the General Protection Regulation. data in Croatia.

The workshops are conducted within the EU project ARC (Awareness Raising Campaign for Small and Medium Enterprises) co-financed by the European Union Program for Rights, Equality and Citizenship, and coordinated by the Personal Data Protection Agency, in partnership with the Data Protection Commission. the Irish Data Protection Supervisor and the Vrije University of Brussels.
