Data protection violations in clubs and associations©

OpenClipart-Vectors / pixabay.comAfter the conference of the independent data protection supervisory authorities of the federal and state governments (DSK) published its concept for determining fines for violations of the GDPR by companies, the state commissioner for data protection and freedom of information (LfDI) the inquiries as to which guidelines apply when assessing fines for clubs and associations.

The concept concerns the assessment of fines in proceedings against companies within the scope of the GDPR. In particular, it does not apply to fines against associations or natural persons outside their economic activity.

However, this does not mean that the LfDI will not impose fines on clubs and associations in the future. However, the assessment of the fine will not be based on the above concept, but generally on the specifications of Art. 83 DS-GVO.
