RESOLUTION OF SANCTIONING PROCEDURE

Of the procedure instructed by the Spanish Agency for Data Protection and based on to the following

BACKGROUND

FIRST: D.A.A.A. (hereinafter, the claiming party) dated December 4, 2021 filed a claim with the Spanish Data Protection Agency. The claim is directed against DIGI SPAIN TELECOM, S.L. with NIF B84919760 (in forward, the claimed party or DIGI). The reasons on which the claim is based are the following:
following:

The claimant states that his spouse signed a contract with the entity claimed that included fiber service and four additional mobile phone lines, the claimant being a user of one of them.

Thus, on November 13, 2021, his mobile phone line stopped function and hours later, check the existence of unauthorized movements in your bank account. He contacts the defendant and the latter informs him that an duplicate of your SIM card. The claimant communicates that it was not him and requests the operator canceling said card due to identity theft. However, to date following (November 14, 2021), check that withdrawals are still being made cash and unauthorized purchases in your bank account, so you contact DIGI and confirms that said entity canceled, by mistake, the SIM card of the line that it used his wife and not that of the claimant, proceeding, finally, on November 15, 2021, at the loss of the claimant's SIM card.

In addition, it indicates that, later, he went to an office of the requested entity to request a duplicate SIM card and thus recover the line, without the employee who attends you requests identification documentation of the holder of the line.

And, provide the following relevant documentation:

Provide telephone bill dated October 22, 2021.

Complaint made by the claimant to the Police, on November 18, 2021, and extension carried out by his wife on November 20.

Details of fraudulent charges made to your bank account.

SECOND: In accordance with article 65.4 of Organic Law 3/2018, of 5 December, Protection of Personal Data and guarantee of digital rights (in forward LOPDGDD), said claim was transferred to the party claimed/ALIAS, to proceed with its analysis and inform this Agency in the period of one month, of the actions carried out to adapt to the requirements provided for in the data protection regulations.

The transfer, which was carried out in accordance with the regulations established in Law 39/2015, of October 1, of the Common Administrative Procedure of the Administrations Public (hereinafter, LPACAP), was collected on February 7, 2022 as

It appears in the acknowledgment of receipt that is in the file.

On March 7, 2022, this Agency received a written response stating that the registration line TELEPHONE.1 has been registered in their systems since 31 of January 2020 in the name of Mrs. B.B.B.. Although the claimant is the one who alleges in your claim to be a user of the line.

Dated April 19, 2021 Ms. B.B.B. addressed DIGI stating that he believes that they are impersonating you on the line TELEPHONE.1.

On the other hand, DIGI points out that "no request for duplicates or other activity that would make it possible to infer that there was some type of irregularity regarding the hired services".

It also indicates that on November 13, 2021, DIGI received a telephone request duplicate SIM card for the aforementioned number and states that "the caller exceeds all security questions imposed by DIGI, so we proceed to approve the issuance of the duplicate", and it is also stated that "instructions are given to the applicant to go in person to a point of sale together with his document of original identity to obtain the duplicate SIM".

On the other hand, it states that on that day, at 11:26 p.m., the claimant contacted contact with the entity indicating that the line was not working since 6:00 p.m., also alleging that "they had taken money from the bank and therefore once once the security policy has been passed, the issuance of a new duplicate is approved the line being provisionally suspended". The claimant returned to recover the control of the line the next day.

DIGI, indicates that in this case it follows that an alleged impersonator was the one who I request the duplicate having knowledge "of the personal information of the wife of the claimant" it is indicated that the claimant was not diligent in the custody of his personal data, which is evidenced by the fact that their passwords for their email accounts "were known by an outside person" and "by the fact that he used a mobile phone number that was not owned by him as security mechanism of your bank, and that there is diligence on the part of the entity responsible expressed in the immediate rectification of the element causing the incident with the restitution of control of the line carried out the next day".

They attach a report on the existing measures and those they intend to implement.

THIRD: In accordance with article 65 of Organic Law 3/2018, of 5

FIFTH: On December 7, 2022, the Director of the Spanish Agency for

SEVENTH: On December 30, 2022, it is received at this Agency, on time and form, written by the representative of DIGI in which, in summary, it is argued that reiterate in the allegations previously presented, first pointing out that chronological manner in which the events occurred, indicating the security protocol and the measures adopted for these events, stating that DIGI has not made available disposition of the alleged offenders personal information of the complainant other than than they already had those previously, after having obtained them through the email.

As a result, it is not possible to associate DIGI with the performance of a treatment not legitimized of personal data, given that its performance is reduced to compliance with its processes and obligations.

In other words, during the process of requesting and delivering the duplicate, a processing of personal data provided to DIGI in order for it to verify the identity of the interlocutor, first by telephone and later in person.

Besides. DIGI states that it is proven that identity theft and the illegitimate access to the claimant's data occurs prior to have contact with DIGI, the alleged supplanter had in his possession the data personal information of the claimant, including his bank account (which allowed him, as well himself, access it).

On the other hand, it points out that the AEPD unequivocally imposes on DIGI a strict liability, in which, regardless of the diligence and measures deployed, the entity is found guilty. The AEPD seems to confuse the concept of proactive responsibility with the obligation of result imposed by the strict liability. In the present case, the existence of a strict control, before and after the application of the duplicate, the establishment of prior and subsequent measures, as well as the existence of measures aimed at Avoid these practices in advance.

For this reason, the claimed party considers that this Startup Agreement is not adjusted to law, since it imposes on DIGI an obligation of result, based on only in the harmful result that is produced by the fraudulent activity of a third, regardless of the diligence used and without considering the deployment of measures technically adequate and implemented.

In addition, it indicates that the following extenuating circumstances currently exist that have not been considered in the appropriate graduation of the sanction:

The absence of previous infringements committed by DIGI (art. 83.2 e) GDPR).

At no time have special categories of data been processed (Art. 83.2 g)

GDPR)

The degree of cooperation of DIGI with the AEPD in order to remedy a alleged infringement and mitigate its possible adverse effects (art. 83.2 f) GDPR).

The non-existent benefit obtained (Art. 83.2 k).

It requests that a resolution be issued by means of which it indicates the file of the procedure.

Subsidiarily warning and, ultimately, moderate or modulate the proposal included in the Initiation Agreement.

EIGHTH: On January 10, 2023, the instructor of the procedure agreed perform the following tests:

1. The claim filed by D.

A.A.A. and its documentation, the documents obtained and generated during the phase of admission to processing of the claim, and the report of previous actions of investigation that are part of the procedure.

2. Likewise, it is considered reproduced for evidentiary purposes, the allegations to the agreement initiation of the referenced sanctioning procedure, presented by DIGI SPAIN TELECOM, S.L., and the documentation that accompanies them.

NINTH: On February 3, 2023, a resolution proposal was formulated, proposing that the Director of the Spanish Data Protection Agency sanction DIGI SPAIN TELECOM, S.L., with NIF B84919760, for an infringement of the Article 6.1 of the GDPR, typified in Article 83.5 a) of the GDPR, the sanction that would correspond would be a fine for an amount of 70,000 euros (seventy thousand euros).

TENTH: Once the proposed resolution was notified, the defendant requested an extension term to formulate allegations that was granted, presented a brief of allegations on February 27, 2023 in which, in summary, it is argued that it is reiterated in the allegations previously presented, and that in the report issued by the Agency of Cybersecurity of the European Union ratifies that, to make a duplicate SIM fraud, the fraudster needs to have access to some of the data personal data of the victim, client of the operator. That is, that cybercriminals, have personal data of their victims prior to going before the Mobile Network Operator.

He points out that this is what happened in this case, the victim lost control about your personal data in favor of the impersonator prior to the latter contact DIGI, as evidenced by the recording provided and that proves that the applicant unequivocally provides the personal data of the Claimant.

"In any case, it is through the phishing attack where the victims, in this case, the Claimant and their spouse lose control over their personal data personal, and it is this fact that triggers and makes possible the commission of fraud.

Thus, there is the possibility that even following the protocol and having requested a copy of the DNI is false. Furthermore, the fact that it had been carried out a photocopy of that document would not have added greater security to the operation. That is why the claimed party considers that the Proposal is not adjusted to right, since it imposes on DIGI an obligation of result, consisting of the establishment of infallible measures, when imputing a violation of article 6.1 of the GDPR based solely on the harmful result that is produced by the fraudulent intervention by a third party, regardless of the diligence used and without consider the deployment of technically adequate and implemented measures.

DIGI cannot anticipate or know what the applicable duty of care is.

On the lack of proportionality of the proposed sanction and that prior to the procedures timely, a resolution is issued by means of which the file of the procedure is indicated EXP202201226”.

Of the actions carried out in this procedure and of the documentation in the file, the following have been accredited:

PROVEN FACTS

FIRST: The claimant filed a claim with this Agency on the 4th of December 2021, in which it is stated that the claimed party provided on the 13th November of the same year to a third party a duplicate of his SIM card, his line of mobile phone stopped working and hours later, check the existence of unauthorized movements in your bank account.

SECOND: DIGI certifies that the duplicate was produced on November 13, 2021, through a call he received requesting a duplicate SIM card for the line TELEPHONE.1.

THIRD: It is verified that the part claimed before the overcoming by the caller of the personal data of the owner of the line proceeded to issue a code of application for a duplicate SIM card and that same day the applicant presents at a DIGI distribution point. There they proceed to issue the SIM card to said third party who was not the owner of the line, the duplicate was delivered in the establishment of a DIGI dealer.

FOURTH: The claimed party has acknowledged in its response that it admonished the distributor, being definitively suspended from the operational activity with the objective of avoiding future behaviors such as the one in the case.

FIFTH: It is accredited, in the communication of DIGI with the distributor in which this he answers that the weekend (when the duplicate was issued) his brother stayed in the store in a very punctual manner and that it is possible that his brother did not ask for the original identity document due to ignorance.

SIXTH: The line was active from 5:00 p.m. to 11:26 p.m.

(approximately), on 11/13/2021 and the claimant obtains a new duplicate regaining control of it the next day.

Likewise, article 63.2 of the LOPDGDD determines that: "Procedures processed by the Spanish Data Protection Agency will be governed by the provisions in Regulation (EU) 2016/679, in this organic law, by the provisions regulations dictated in its development and, insofar as they do not contradict them, with character subsidiary, by the general rules on administrative procedures."

II

Breached Obligation

The claimed party is accused of committing an offense for violation of the Article 6 of the GDPR, "Legacy of the treatment", which indicates in its section 1 the cases in which the processing of third-party data is considered lawful:

"1. Processing will only be lawful if at least one of the following is fulfilled conditions:

- b) the treatment is necessary for the execution of a contract in which the interested party is part of or for the application at the request of the latter of pre-contractual measures;

II

Classification and classification of the offense

The infringement is typified in article 83.5 of the GDPR, which considers as such:

in the case of a company, an amount equivalent to a maximum of 4% of the total annual global business volume of the previous financial year, opting for the highest amount:

consent in accordance with articles 5,6,7 and 9.”

The LOPDGD, for the purposes of the prescription of the infringement, qualifies in its article 72.1

very serious infringement, in this case the limitation period is three years, "b)

The processing of personal data without the fulfillment of any of the conditions of legality of the treatment established in article 6 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679".

In response to the allegations presented by the respondent entity, it should be noted the next:

Regarding the fact that DIGI has not made available to the alleged criminals personal information of the complaining party other than that already held by those with anteriority. Consequently, there has been no unauthorized treatment of personal information.

Indeed, the issuance of a duplicate is not enough to carry out operations bank accounts on behalf of the holders, certainly, to complete the scam, it is necessary for a third party to "supplant the identity" of the owner of the data before the entity financial.

What entails a priori, a treatment outside the principle of legality because a third party is processing data, since it has access to them, without any legal basis, in addition of the violation of other principles such as confidentiality.

For this reason, this is a process where the diligence provided by the operators is essential to avoid this type of scam and violation of the GDPR.

Diligence that translates into the establishment of adequate measures to guarantee that the data processing is in accordance with the GDPR.

Identical considerations deserve the actions of banking entities that provide payment services, in which area this type of scam starts, since the third party has access to the affected user's credentials and poses as this.

While these entities are responsible for the processing of the data of their customers, they are responsible for the same obligations as those indicated up to now for the operators referring to compliance with the RGPD and the LOPDGDD, and also the derived from Royal Decree-Law 19/2018, of November 23, on payment services and other urgent financial measures.

It can be inferred that DIGI has provided a duplicate SIM card to a third party other than the legitimate owner of the mobile line, after overcoming by a third party the policy of existing security, which shows a breach of the duty to protect the customer information.

Denying the concurrence of a negligent act on the part of DIGI would amount to recognize that their conduct -by action or omission- has been diligent. Obviously not

We share this perspective of the facts, since the lack of due diligence. It is very illustrative, the SAN of October 17, 2007

(rec. 63/2006), assuming that these are entities whose activity involves in continuous treatment of customer data, indicates that "...the Supreme Court comes understanding that imprudence exists whenever a legal duty of assessment of the degree of diligence, professionalism must be especially considered or not of the subject, and there is no doubt that, in the case now examined, when the

The appellant's activity is constant and abundant handling of personal data.

staff must insist on rigor and exquisite care in adjusting to the legal provisions in this regard.

It is proven in the file that security has not been guaranteed appropriate in the processing of personal data, taking into account the result that identity theft has occurred. That is, a third party has managed to access to the personal data of the owner of the line.

Regarding the fact that criminals have not managed to obtain personal data from DIGI, so there can be no talk of breach of protection measures, point out that access to a duplicate SIM card that makes its user identifiable owner, responds to the definition of personal data in article 4.1) of the GDPR.

Regarding the responsibility of DIGI, it should be noted that, in general, DIGI processes the data of its clients under the provisions of article 6.1 b) of the GDPR, as it is considered a necessary treatment for the execution of a contract in which the interested party is part or for the application at his request of measures pre-contractual In other cases, it bases the legality of the treatment on the bases provided for in article 6.1.a), c), e) and f) of the GDPR.

On the other hand, to complete the scam, it is necessary for a third party to "impersonate the identity" of the owner of the data, to receive the duplicate of the SIM card. Which entails a priori, a treatment outside the principle of legality since a third party is processing data, since it has access to them, without any legal basis, in addition to the violation of other principles such as confidentiality.

Certainly, the principle of responsibility provided for in article 28 of the LRJSP, provides that: "They may only be penalized for acts constituting an infringement administrative authority for natural and legal persons, as well as when a Law recognize capacity to act, affected groups, unions and entities without legal personality and independent or autonomous estates, which result responsible for them by way of fraud or negligence."

However, the mode of attribution of liability to legal persons is not corresponds to the willful or reckless forms of guilt that are imputable to human behavior. So, in the case of offenses committed by legal persons, even if the element of guilt must be present, it will be necessarily applies differently from what is done with respect to persons physical.

According to STC 246/1991 "(...) this different construction of the imputability of self-November 2011, Rec 258/2009).

To the foregoing must be added, following the judgment of January 23, 1998, partially transcribed in the SSTs of October 9, 2009, Rec 5285/2005, and of 23 of October 2010, Rec 1067/2006, that "although the guilt of the conduct must also be the object of proof, must be considered in order to assume the exclusion requires that the absence of such elements be proven, or in its aspect Accordingly, the plea is dismissed. ultimate responsibility on the treatment continues to be attributed to the person in charge, who is the one who determines the existence of the treatment and its purpose. Let us remember that, in general, the operators process the data of their customers under the provisions of article 6.1 b) of the GDPR, as it is considered a necessary treatment for the execution of a contract in which the interested party is a party (...). In this sense, DIGI has a network of sales representatives, points of sale and authorized distributors through a distribution contract to offer DIGI services. Among these services offered from their points of sale, is making duplicate SIM cards corresponding to a mobile telephone line.

Regarding the breach of the principle of proportionality, the GDPR provides expressly the possibility of graduation, through the provision of fines subject to modulation, in response to a series of circumstances of each case individual.

Regarding the imposition of a warning, warning, or the adoption of corrective measures pursuant to article 58 of the GDPR, a deterrent fine is one that has a genuine deterrent effect. In this regard, the Judgment of the CJEU, of June 13, 2013,

C-511/11,

ECLI:EU:C:2013:386, says:

Versalis Spa v Commission,

"94. Regarding, firstly, the reference to the Showa Denko v Commission judgment, www.aepd.es

quoted above, it should be noted that Versalis interprets it incorrectly. Indeed, the Court of Justice, when stating in section 23 of said judgment that the factor deterrent is assessed taking into consideration a multitude of elements and not only the particular situation of the company in question, referred to points 53 to 55 of the conclusions presented in that case by Advocate General Geelhoed, who had stated, in essence, that the deterrent multiplier factor may be aimed at not only "general deterrence", defined as an action to discourage all companies, in general, from committing the infringement of in question, but also a "specific deterrence", consisting of dissuading the particular defendant so that he does not break the rules again in the future. For the Therefore, the Court of Justice only confirmed, in that judgment, that the Commission did not was required to limit its assessment to factors related solely to the particular situation of the company in question."

"102. According to settled case law, the objective of the dissuasive multiplying factor and consideration, in this context, of the size and overall resources of the company in question lies in the desired impact on said company, since the sanction should not be insignificant, especially in relation to the ability of the company (in this sense, see, in particular, the judgment of 17 June 2010, Lafarge v Commission, C-413/08 P, ECR p. I-5361, section 104, and the writ of February 7, 2012, Total and Elf Aquitaine v Commission, C-421/11 P, paragraph 82).

We must attend to the singular circumstance of the claim presented, through from which it can be seen that, from the moment the person impersonator performs the SIM replacement, the victim's phone is left without service passing control of the line to the impersonators. Consequently, their powers of disposal and control over their personal data are affected, which constitute part of the content of the fundamental right to data protection as indicated by the Constitutional Court in Judgment 292/2000, of 30 November 2000 (FJ 7). So, when getting a duplicate SIM card, Under certain circumstances, access to the contacts or the applications and services that have as a key recovery procedure the sending an SMS with a code to be able to modify the passwords. Definitely, may impersonate the identity of those affected, being able to access and control, for example: email accounts; bank accounts; apps like WhatsApp; social networks, such as Facebook or Twitter, and a long etc. in short accounts, once the password has been modified by the impersonators, they lose control of your accounts, applications and services, which poses a great threat. In short, it is the data controller who has the obligation to integrate the necessary guarantees in the treatment, with the purpose of, by virtue of the principle of proactive responsibility, comply and be able to demonstrate compliance, at the same while respecting the fundamental right to data protection.

In the present case, it is proven that on November 13, 2021 DIGI processed the issuance of a duplicate SIM card for line TELEPHONE.1, belonging to the complaining party.

However, it should be noted that Sim Swapping is a fraud that allows you to impersonate identity by kidnapping the phone number by obtaining a duplicate of the SIM card.

In any case, the operator must be able to prove that for this specific case have followed the verification protocols implemented when requesting a duplicate SIM card.

Well then, the result was that the defendant issued the SIM card to a third party who did not he was the owner of the line.

In view of the foregoing, DIGI is unable to prove that this procedure.

In fact, the establishment where the duplicate SIM card was issued must have the original of the identification document has been verified, provided that, if If this operation had been carried out correctly, the duplicate should have been denied.

In the explanation provided by the claimed party, it does not indicate which could have been the specific cause that led to the issuance of the duplicate, beyond some generic explanations about a fraudulent activity of a third party. Throughout case, the claimed party has not been able to prove that for this case follow the procedure implanted by herself, since, if she had done so, she would should have produced duplicate SIM card denial.

On the other hand, DIGI admonished the distributor, being definitively suspended from the company. operational activity with the aim of avoiding future behaviors such as the one in the case.

They provide a copy of the communication with the distributor in which he answers that the purpose week (when the duplicate was issued) his brother stayed in the very punctual manner and that it is possible that his brother did not ask for the document original identity due to ignorance.

Based on the foregoing, in the case analyzed, the diligence used by the defendant to identify the person who requested a duplicate SIM card.

Based on the available evidence, it is estimated that the conduct of the claimed party violates article 6.1 of the GDPR and may be constitutive of the infringement typified in article 83.5.a) of the aforementioned Regulation 2016/679.

In this sense, Recital 40 of the GDPR states:

"(40) For processing to be lawful, personal data must be processed with the consent of the interested party or on some other legitimate basis established in accordance a Law, either in this Regulation or under other Union law or of the Member States referred to in this Regulation, including the the need to comply with the legal obligation applicable to the data controller or the need to execute a contract to which the interested party is a party or for the purpose of take measures at the request of the interested party prior to the conclusion of a contract."

Within this section, the LOPDGDD contemplates in its article 76, entitled "Sancio-and corrective measures”:

"1. The sanctions provided for in sections 4, 5 and 6 of article 83 of the Regulation (UE) 2016/679 will be applied taking into account the graduation criteria established in section 2 of said article.

2. In accordance with the provisions of article 83.2.k) of Regulation (EU) 2016/679 may also be taken into account:

a) The continuing nature of the offence.

b) The link between the activity of the offender and the performance of data processing. personal information.

c) The benefits obtained as a consequence of the commission of the infraction.

d) The possibility that the conduct of the affected party could have led to the commission of the offence.

e) The existence of a merger by absorption process subsequent to the commission of the violation, which cannot be attributed to the absorbing entity.

f) The affectation of the rights of minors.

g) Have, when it is not mandatory, a data protection delegate.

h) Submission by the person responsible or in charge, on a voluntary basis, to alternative conflict resolution mechanisms, in those cases in which there are controversies between those and any interested party.

3. It will be possible, complementary or alternatively, the adoption, when appropriate, of the remaining corrective measures referred to in article 83.2 of the Regulation (EU) 2016/679.”

Digi requests that the following extenuating circumstances be appreciated:

(I) "the absence of prior infringements" (art. 83.2 e) GDPR).

(II) "At no time have special categories of data been processed" (art. 83.2 g).

(III) "cooperation with the supervisory authority in responding to the transfer of the claim and having provided the requested information”, article 83.2 f) of the GDPR.

(IV) "The non-existence of benefits obtained through the infringement", article 83.2 k) of the GDPR and 76.2 c) of the LOPDGDD.

None of the invoked mitigations are allowed.

Regarding (I) and (II), it should be noted that such circumstances can only operate as aggravating and in no case as mitigating.

The pronouncement made by the National Court in its SAN of May 5, 2021

(Rec. 1437/2020) on section e) of article 83.2. of the GDPR, the commission of previous violations:

"Considers, on the other hand, that the non-commission should be considered as mitigating from a previous violation. Well, article 83.2 of the GDPR establishes that must be taken into account for the imposition of the administrative fine, among others, the circumstance "e) any previous infringement committed by the person responsible or the person in charge of the treatment". This is an aggravating circumstance, the fact The fact that the budget for its application does not meet implies that it cannot be taken into consideration, but does not imply or allow, as the plaintiff claims, its application as a mitigation";

(III) Article 83.2.f) of the GDPR refers to the "degree of cooperation with the control in order to remedy the infringement and mitigate the possible effects adverse effects of the offence;". The respondent's response to the information request of the Sub-directorate of Inspection did not meet these purposes, so it is not framed in that mitigation.

(IV) On the application of article 76.2.c) of the LOPDGDD, in connection with the Article 83.2.k), non-existence of benefits obtained, it should be noted that such circumstance can only operate as an aggravating circumstance and in no case as a mitigating circumstance.

Article 83.2.k) of the GDPR refers to "any other aggravating or mitigating factor applicable to the circumstances of the case, such as the financial benefits obtained or the losses avoided, directly or indirectly, through the breach." and the article 76.2c) of the LOPDGDD says that "2. In accordance with the provisions of article 83.2.k) of the Regulation (EU) 2016/679 may also be taken into account: [...] c) The benefits obtained as a consequence of the commission of the infraction." Both provisions mentioned as a factor that can be taken into account in grading the sanction the "benefits" obtained, but not the "absence" of these, which is what DIGI claims. In addition, in accordance with article 83.1 of the GDPR, the imposition of fine sanctions is governed by the following principles: they must be individualized for each particular case, be effective, proportionate and dissuasive. The admission that it operates as a mitigation, the absence of benefits is contrary to the spirit of article 83.1 of the GDPR and the principles governing the determination of the amount of the fine penalty. If, as a result of the commission of a violation of the GDPR, it is classified as mitigating the fact that there have been no benefits, the dissuasive purpose that it is fulfilled through the sanction. Accepting DIGI's thesis in a case such as the one we are dealing with would mean introducing an artificial reduction in the penalty that truly it should be imposed; the one that results from considering the circumstances of article 83.2 GDPR that must be valued.

The Administrative Litigation Chamber of the National Court has warned that the fact that in a specific case not all the elements that constitute a circumstance modifying liability that, by its nature, has an aggravating nature, cannot lead to the conclusion that said circumstance is applicable as a mitigation. The pronouncement made by the National Court in its SAN of May 5, 2021 (Rec. 1437/2020) -even though that resolution is seen on the circumstance of section e) of article 83.2. of the GDPR, the commission of previous infractions - can be extrapolated to the question raised, the claim of the demanded that the "absence" of benefits be accepted as mitigation, thus that both the GDPR and the LOPDGDD refer only to "the benefits obtained":

"Considers, on the other hand, that the non-commission should be considered as mitigating from a previous violation. Well, article 83.2 of the GDPR establishes that must be taken into account for the imposition of the administrative fine, among others, the circumstance "e) any previous infringement committed by the person responsible or the person in charge of the treatment". This is an aggravating circumstance, the fact that the budget for its application does not meet implies that it cannot be taken into consideration, but does not imply or allow, as the plaintiff claims, its application as a mitigation";

In accordance with the precepts transcribed, for the purpose of setting the amount of the sanction of fine to be imposed on the entity claimed as responsible for a classified offense in article 83.5.a) of the GDPR and 72.1 b) of the LOPDGDD, are considered concurrent in the present case the following factors:

As aggravating factors:

The evident link between the business activity of the defendant and the treatment of personal data of clients or third parties (article 83.2.k, of the GDPR in relation to article 76.2.b, of the LOPDGDD).

The Judgment of the National Court of 10/17/2007 (rec. 63/2006), in which, with respect to entities whose activity entails the continuous processing of customer data, indicates that "...the Supreme Court has understood that recklessness exists whenever a legal duty of care is neglected, that is that is, when the offender does not behave with the required diligence. And in the assessment of the degree of diligence, special consideration must be given to the professionalism or not of the subject, and there is no doubt that, in the case now examined, when the appellant's activity is constant and abundant handling of personal data must insist on rigor and exquisite Be careful to comply with the legal provisions in this regard."

As mitigations:

The claimed party proceeded to resolve the incident that is the subject of the claim effective (art. 83.2 c).

The balance of the circumstances contemplated in article 83.2 of the GDPR, with regarding the offense committed by violating the provisions of article 6.1 of the GDPR allows a penalty of 70,000 euros (seventy thousand euros) to be set.

Therefore, in accordance with the applicable legislation and assessed the criteria of graduation of sanctions whose existence has been accredited, the Director of the Spanish Data Protection Agency RESOLVES:
