FUNDAMENTALS OF LAW

Yo

In accordance with the powers that article 58.2 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679 (General Data Protection Regulation, hereinafter GDPR), grants each control authority and as established in articles 47, 48.1, 64.2 and 68.1 of the Organic Law 3/2018, of December 5, on the Protection of Personal Data and guarantee of digital rights (hereinafter, LOPDGDD), is competent to initiate and resolve this procedure the Director of the Spanish Protection Agency of data.

Likewise, article 63.2 of the LOPDGDD determines that: "The procedures processed by the Spanish Data Protection Agency will be governed by the provisions in Regulation (EU) 2016/679, in this organic law, by the provisions regulations dictated in its development and, insofar as they do not contradict them, with character subsidiary, by the general rules on administrative procedures."

breached obligation

Pursuant to article 5.1 of the GDPR, the processing of personal data must be governed by

by the following principles:

"1. Personal data will be:

to)

treated in a lawful, loyal and transparent manner with the interested party (...)

2. The controller will be responsible for compliance with the provisions in paragraph 1 and able to demonstrate it "

One of the manifestations of the principle of transparency is the right that the GDPR grants the owners of the data to receive information and the correlative obligation that requires the data controller to provide the data subject with the information detail articles 12, 13 and 14 of the GDPR.

These last two provisions contemplate two different assumptions: That the data is obtained directly from the interested party (article 13), as happens on the website www.mascotagadget.com, or that the data is not obtained from the interested party (article 14).

Article 13 of the GDPR establishes:

"1. When personal data relating to him or her is obtained from an interested party, the responsible for the treatment, at the time they are obtained, will provide you with all the information listed below:

- a) the identity and contact details of the person in charge and, where appropriate, their representative;
- b) the contact details of the data protection officer, if applicable;
- c) the purposes of the processing for which the personal data is intended and the legal basis of the treatment;

d) when the treatment is based on article 6, paragraph 1, letter f), the interests legitimate of the person in charge or of a third party;

e) the recipients or categories of recipients of personal data, in their case; f) where appropriate, the intention of the controller to transfer personal data to a third country or international organization and the existence or absence of a decision of adequacy of the Commission, or, in the case of the transfers indicated in the Articles 46 or 47 or Article 49, paragraph 1, second subparagraph, reference to the adequate or appropriate guarantees and the means to obtain a copy of these or to the fact that they have been lent.

2. In addition to the information mentioned in section 1, the person responsible for the treatment will provide the interested party, at the time the data is obtained personal data, the following information necessary to guarantee data processing fair and transparent

a) the period during which the personal data will be kept or, when it is not possible, the criteria used to determine this term;

b) the existence of the right to request the data controller access to the personal data relating to the interested party, and its rectification or deletion, or the limitation of their treatment, or to oppose the treatment, as well as the right to portability

of the data

c) when the treatment is based on article 6, paragraph 1, letter a), or article

9, paragraph 2, letter a), the existence of the right to withdraw consent in at any time, without affecting the legality of the treatment based on the consent prior to its withdrawal;

d) the right to file a claim with a control authority;

e) if the communication of personal data is a legal or contractual requirement, or a necessary requirement to sign a contract, and if the interested party is obliged to provide personal data and is informed of the possible consequences of not provide such data;

f) the existence of automated decisions, including profiling, to which referred to in Article 22, paragraphs 1 and 4, and, at least in such cases, information significant about the applied logic, as well as the importance and consequences provisions of said treatment for the interested party.

3. When the person responsible for the treatment plans the subsequent processing of data personal information for a purpose other than that for which it was collected, will provide the data subject, prior to said further processing, information about that other purpose and any additional information pertinent under section 2. 4. The provisions of paragraphs 1, 2 and 3 shall not apply when and to the extent that the interested party already has the information.”

Recitals 39 and 60 of the GDPR help to specify the scope of the right of information that is given to the interested parties.

Recital 39 establishes: "All processing of personal data must be lawful and loyal. It must be completely clear to natural persons that they are being collected, using, consulting or otherwise processing personal data that concerned, as well as the extent to which said data is or will be processed. The beginning of transparency requires that all information and communication related to the treatment of said data is easily accessible and easy to understand, and that language is used simple and clear. This principle refers in particular to the information of the interested parties on the identity of the person responsible for the treatment and the purposes of the treatment and to the information added to guarantee a fair and transparent treatment with regard to the natural persons affected and their right to obtain confirmation and communication of personal data concerning them that are subject to treatment. Natural persons must be aware of the risks, rules, safeguards and rights relating to the processing of personal data, as well as how to assert your rights in relation to the treatment. In

In particular, the specific purposes of the processing of personal data must be explicit and legitimate, and must be determined at the time of collection. [...].”

Recital 60 clarifies that "The principles of fair and transparent treatment require that the data subject be informed of the existence of the processing operation and their ends. The data controller must provide the interested party with all additional information is necessary to guarantee fair treatment and transparent, taking into account the specific circumstances and context in which process personal data. The interested party must also be informed of the existence of profiling and the consequences of profiling. if the data are obtained from data subjects, they must also be informed whether they are obliged to provide them and of the consequences in case they did not do so.”

In the present case, there is no evidence that data transfers are made for which requires the consent of the interested party.

Likewise, it is observed that the privacy policy does not meet all the requirements established in article 13 of the GDPR, since the period during which the personal data will be kept, or the possibility of filing a claim before the supervisory authority.

Classification and classification of the offense

II

Article 83.5 of the GDPR, under the heading "General conditions for the taxation of administrative fines" provides:

Violations of the following provisions will be sanctioned, in accordance with the paragraph 2, with administrative fines of maximum EUR 20,000,000 or, in the case of a company, an amount equivalent to a maximum of 4% of the total annual global business volume of the previous financial year, opting for the highest amount:

b) the rights of the interested parties in accordance with articles 12 to 22;
