lit. c of the General Data Protection Regulation – GDPR, OJ No. L 119 of 04.05.2016, p. 1.□
REASON□
A. Submissions of the parties and course of the proceedings□
1. With a letter dated July 11, 2018 initiating the procedure, the□ complainant a violation of the right to erasure pursuant to Art. 17 GDPR and □ essentially stated that on June 11, 2018 she had a request for deletion □ their personal data to the respondent. Because the listed□ data is no longer up-to-date, they request that all creditworthiness-relevant data be included responded by letter dated June 12, 2018, stating that in relation to the □ relevant entries no indications for the inaccuracy of the □ registration or the inadmissibility of the processing could have been found. $\hfill\Box$ According to the provisions of the GDPR, I therefore have no deletion or rectification □ of the data to take place. □

2. With a statement dated August 27, 2018, the Respondent led□ summarized from, the "very strange" request for deletion of the complainant□ can only be understood to mean that these mean the personal □ Data are used for the purposes for which they were collected or otherwise processed □ were no longer necessary (Art. 17 Para. 1 lit. a GDPR) or the □ personal data would be processed unlawfully (Art. 17 para. 1 lit. d□ GDPR).□

personal data in the Respondent's identity and creditworthiness database are overriding legitimate interests according to Art. 6 Para. 1 lit. f GDPR. the □ Respondent's standard deletion rules apply. this means that the claims are still considered due to their considerable amount are to be considered relevant to creditworthiness. It is therefore an upright processing purpose exists, which is why neither Article 17 (2) (a) nor Article 17 (d) GDPR deletion has to take place. Other reasons for deletion are on the part of □ Appellant have not been put forward and would not exist. Information stored in the edict file is an evasion of Section 256 Paragraph 1 Z 4 IO□ to a debt settlement process one year after the end of the payment schedule \(\Bar{\pi} \) intended payment deadline can be viewed.
